Context

Themes and Background

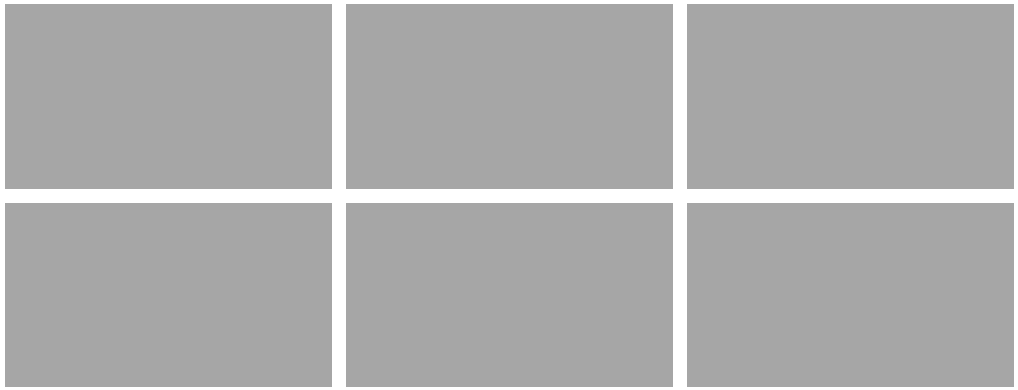

Themes

Exposure and loss: privacy, the cost of being seen, and losing the people you protect.
Principles under pressure: Finch abandons his rules and decides Samaritan must be destroyed.
Tone: quiet dread rising to frantic escape, then grief.

World Setting

Present-day New York watched by two rival artificial super-intelligences. Samaritan sees almost everything; the Machine runs on limited, hidden hardware.
Hired killers from "Temporary Resolutions" and Greer's operatives hunt the team; police can be steered by Samaritan.

Background

Campaign

Finch built the Machine to predict violent crimes. Its rival Samaritan, run by John Greer, now controls the city's surveillance.
Previous level (Sotto Voce): the team hunts a negotiator; Shaw's return leaves a trail Samaritan can follow.

This Level

Samaritan identifies Finch. Elias is killed protecting him, Finch is captured, Root takes a sniper bullet meant for him and dies.
In custody Finch drops his principles and vows to kill Samaritan; the Machine calls him in Root's voice.

Following Levels

Next level (Synecdoche): the team, now without Root, starts its counter-attack on Samaritan. The Machine keeps Root's voice for the rest of the campaign.

Breadcrumbs & Exploration Guidance

Café: the camera above the counter is the brightest object in the room, pulling the eye to where Finch must look to talk to the Machine.

Safe house: lamps are switched on room by room as the team moves Finch to the garage.

Elias's tower: emergency exit signs and Elias's men at each landing mark the escape route.

Greer's base: the open loading door and daylight lead Root to the car.

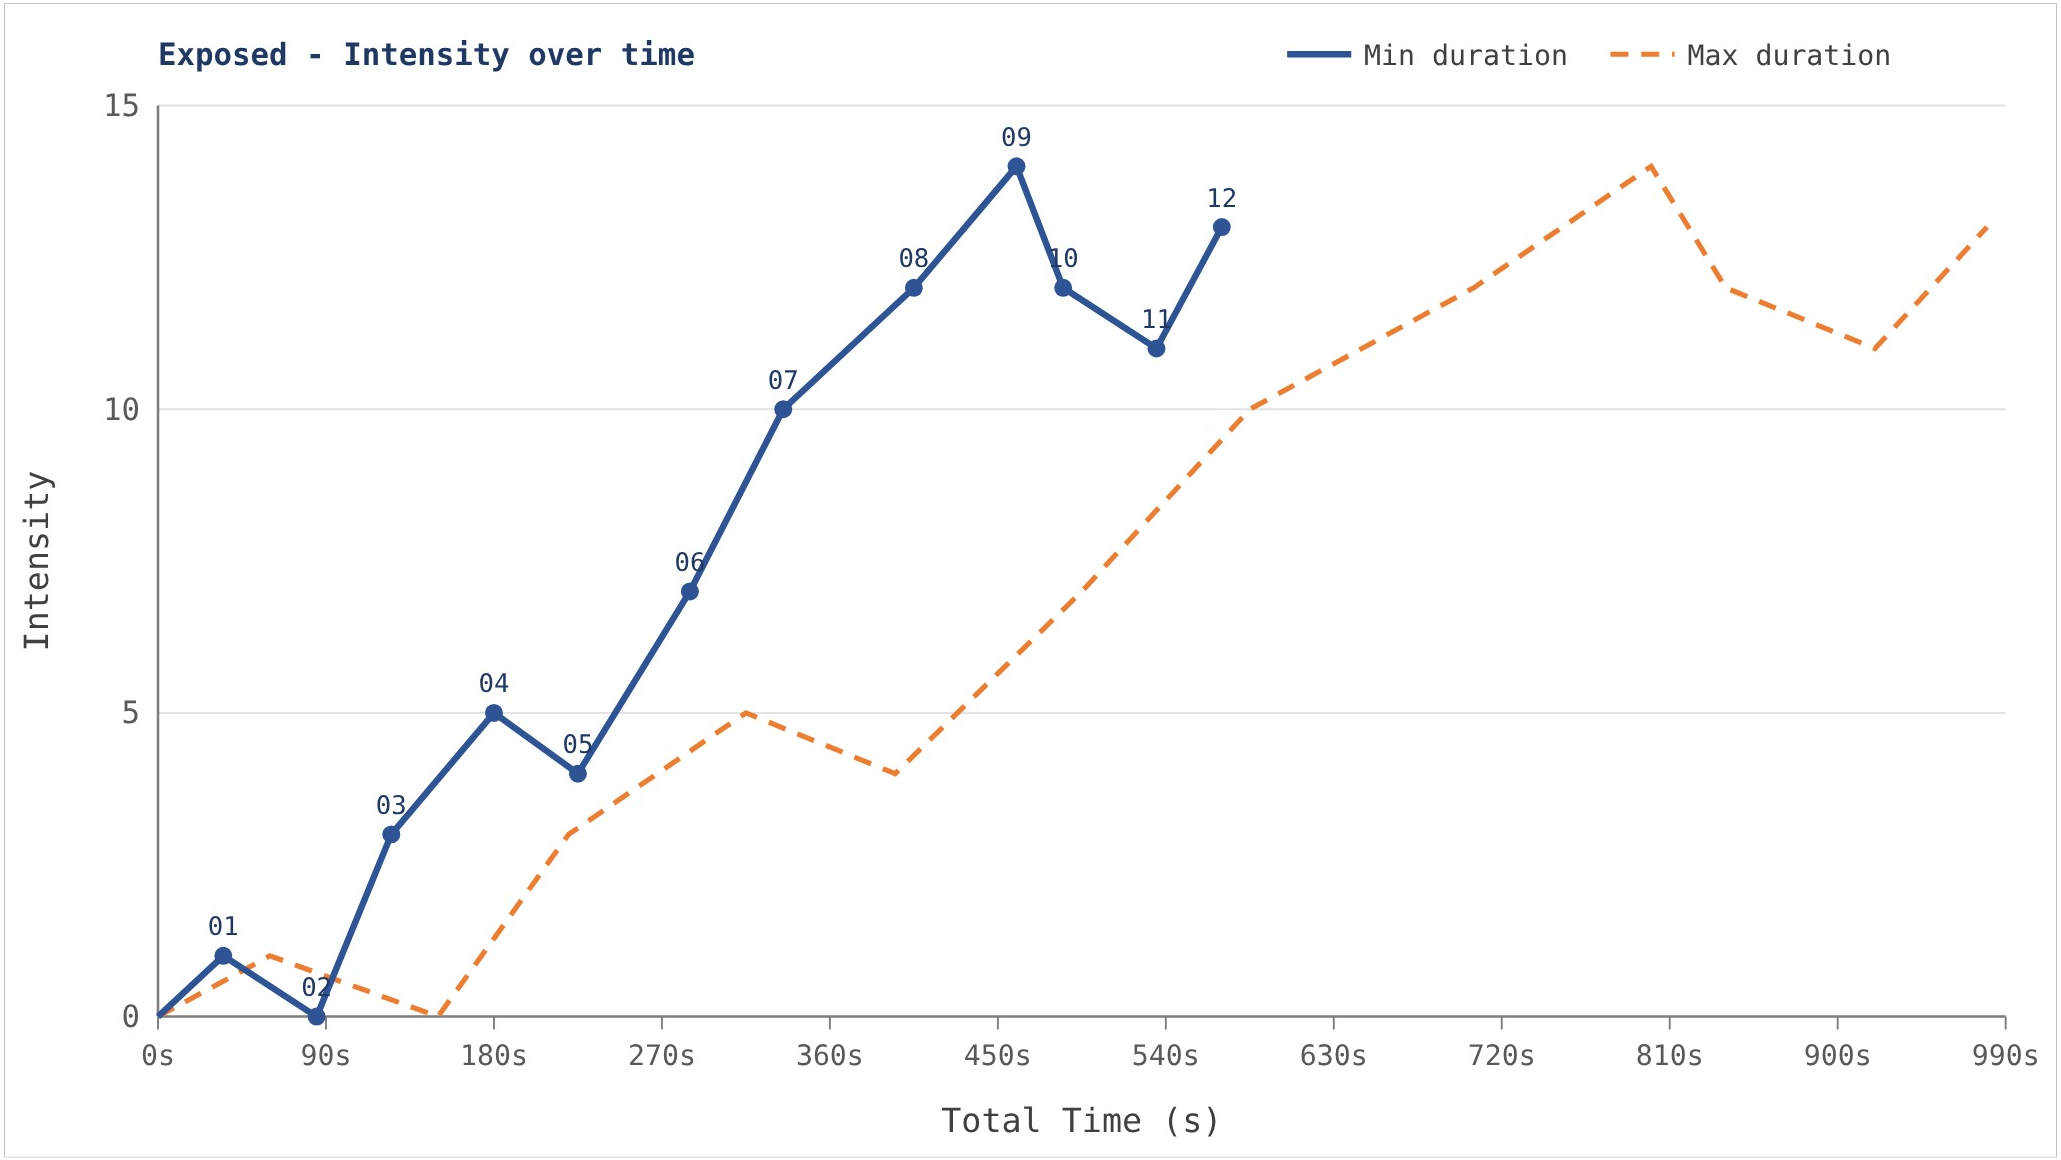

Chase: police lights and closed streets narrow the route towards the roadblock.

Prison: the ringing payphone is the only sound in the corridor and draws Finch to it.
